The Chair put the motion, and the Statehouse rang with yells of "Aye."

"Sing the 'Doxology," was the cry, and they sang it with a whoop.

to the effect that he has approved all the plans for the bridge, as well as the location selected.

"This company now has the right to construct the greates' rallroad bridge and terminals ever built in this country," said Becretary Swan. "The approval of the Secretary of War places the company squarely before the financial world. The bridge will carry clx rallroad tracks, and it is not to cost more than $25,000,000. The botal cost of the bridge, approaches and stations is guaranteed to be within $30,000,000. Within a few years we shall probably see one of the greatest bridges in the world spanning the Hudson' and leading to the finest rallroad station on this continent."

It will be a suspension bridge. The towers are to be of steel, each 657 feet in height. These will rest upon foundations of solid masonry, extending to a depth of 125 feet below high water. The steel frame-work supporting the bridge will be 200 feet in height at its loftlest point. The bridge will be 125 feet in width. It will be suspended from twelve steel cables. The lowest point of the flooring will be 160 feet above mean high water. The towers will be $110 feet apart, leaving the navigation of the Hudson River entirely unobstructed.

One thousand rallway trains enter and leave the New Jersey terminal stations every day. It is expected that practically all these trains will, as soon as possible, use the new bridge as the shortest route to this city for passengers and freight.

ROME, March 17.—The Socialists of this city turned out in force to-day to welcome back to Rome and liberty the leader of their party, Giuseppe de Felice.

De Felics is a Scilian and was formerly a member of the Chamber of Deputies. Early in 1894 he was arrested on the charge of planning with the exiled Anarchist, Cypriote, and Sig. and other parts of Italy, in which considerable blood was shed and much property destroyed.

De Felice and about forty of his companions were tried and sentenced to the penitentiary, and while in prison several of them were re-ciected or elected members of the Chamber of Deputies. Among the former were De Felice, Barbato and Bosco. But on July 18 last the Chamber of Deputies annulled their elections on the ground that the men were convicts. The Socialists, however, took the ground that as the prisoners were sentenced by a military tribunal for offenses of a purely political nature they were not convicts in the proper sense of the term.

It is expected that De Felice, Bosco and Barbato will appear in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, when the new Cabinet makes its first appearance before the House, and claim their rights as Deputies. To emphasize their return they are determined to take seats next to Sig. Crispi, who was mainly instrumental in causing the suppression of the outbreaks of 1894.

HOW COL PHELPS

SOME SILVER MEN DELUDED

The Railroad Statesman's Gum Shee Campaign in Southwest Missouri Is Bearing Fruit.

Col. Bill Phelps of the Missouri Pacific has just returned from Southwest Missouri, where he has been prosecuting his gumshos power in this city Saturday evening, as an articus cierk told a Post-Dispatch responser. Undoubtedly the artiess cierk has not been in the employ of Col. Phelps very long, or he would not even have told the porter. Undoubtedly the artiess cierk has not been in the employ of Col. Phelps very long, or he would not even have told the properter that the Colonel had left the city, much less volunteering a hint as to where the had rone.

Now, Col. Phelps is a great man in Southwest. Something of importance, therefore, may be expected to follow the Colonel's visit to his old stamping ground.

This is not the first trip he has made to that region during the past month or six valing of office here at intervals of a few wakes. He has been slipping away from his railroad office here at intervals of a few waked up many people in the Southwest. At any rate, nobody has made a loud out to ray against the Colonel On the contrary it seems that his visits are appreciated.

Several lesser statesmen in the region are reported to have taken up his cry for "tair play" and are making the hills and the valleys resonant with the refrain. Notable away during they are sonant with the refrain. Notable away during during the pass made a loud out of the property of the property of the principle all through his public career. He is said to cherish a desire to go to Chicago as a delegate from the Fifteenth District, respectively as a delegate from the Fifteenth District, is having trouble, as a delegate from the Fifteenth District, is passing the last of the principle all through his public career. He is said to cherish a desire to go to Chicago as a delegate from the Fifteenth District, is not the principle as the many fight for the principle in the Democratic National Convention.

But withal he is said to be a "fair play" the fact of the principle in the Democratic National Convention.

But withal he is said to be a "fair play" the fact of the principle in the Democratic National Convention.

But withal he is said to be a "fair play" the sa among these is said to be Congressman Charles H. Morgan, of Lamar, Barton County.

The ex-Congressman is a stanch and unyielding advocate of 16 to 1 free bimetallic coinage, and has contended stoutly for that principle all through his public career. He is said to cherish a desire to go to Chicago as a delegate from the Fifteenth District, in order that he may fight for the principle in the Democratic National Convention.

But withal he is said to be a "fair play" statesman ready to listen to no proposition at Bedalis next month which has for its object the sending of a solid free silver delegation to Chicago.

Col. Phelps, it is alleged, has succeeded in convincing Col. Morgan that the proposition that the harmonizing voice of a State and not the discordant voices of Congressional districts should be heard in national conventions is against "fair play and party precedent."

What other Southwesterners of note Col. Phelps converted on this last trip remains to be seen; though that his visit will be barren of results those who know him best do not consider possible.

County conventions are soon to be held in the Fifteenth District and statesmen ambitious to attend them in order that they may get to Sedalia, where the Missouri Democracy is expected to blaze the way on the currency question, will want railroad passes. And Col. Bill Phelps is the man to go to for railroad passes.

But the Colonel has boldly announced in advance that only those statesmen who are for "fair play" need apply to him for passes.

THE REPUBLIC'S LITTLE GAME

There Mas Been a Change of Men as Well as a Change of Policy.

The Republic's sudden change from soothsaying pleader for "harmony" to an abusive and ranting scold is the subject of abusive and ranting scoid is the subject of a good deal of comment among the street corner politicians. There is also more or less speculation as to the cause if it and what it means. A gentleman who claims to be well informed and who declares his information to be reliable, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning:

"There is a good deal more behind the Republic's change of policy than appears on the surface. It is not merely a change of policy, but to a considerable extent a change of men. During the past two weeks there

A Tale of Horrors About th Jacksonville Asylum.

TOLD BY A CHICAGO PAPER.

Governor Altgeld Goes to the Scene and Says He Will Lay the Facts Bare.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., March 17.—Gov. Aligeld has come to Jacksonville to investigate some serious charges made by the Chicago Tribune against the management of the State Insane Asylum at this city, involving extraordinary cruelty and neglect by attendants and five deaths of inmates. Following is the arraignment as printed in the Tribune.

the Tribune:

Charges of negligence on the part of attendants which has resulted in the death of five inmates were brought to the attention of The Tribune last week. A careful inquiry has been made and the results thereof tend to show that a thorough investigation by the State authorities would be of value.

tion by the State authorities would be of value.

If the charges made against the conduct of affairs at the Jacksonville Insane Asylum are true, those guilty of negligence should be dealt with according to law. If not true, the wagging tongues which are spreading the story over Illinois should be stopped from defaming the institution.

To accomplish one or the other of these results an investigation is absolutely necessary. The Tribune, therefore, places the results of its inquiry at the disposal of Gov. Altgeld and the Asylum Board.

Elizabeth Sallee was killed by a dose of chloroform, administered, so it is said, against the protest of the physician in charge of her case.

Sarah E. Johnson died June 23, 1885, as the result, it is said, of being scalded in a bath through the carelessness of the attendants. There are rumors in Jacksonville of another patient who was scalded to death, of others who have met their deaths through improper treatment, but if these rumors are true the facts are burled with the victims and locked up in the bosoms of the attendants who are said to be responsible.

One of the most pitiful of all the stories is that of the death of Julian Grabowiski, said to have been inflicted through the blundering of careless attendants. Grabowiski was a Russian, sent to the hospital from Hamilton, Hancock County. He was kept in Ward 12 of the main building, and Feb. 5 it became the duty of the attendants, Antony Casey and Samuel Ruby, to give him a bath. They first undressed him and then left him either in the tub or by it while they went out to the clothes-room to get clean clothes for him. When they came back Grabowiski, who was partially paralyzed and unable to help himself, was in the tub sizzling in a caldron of boiling water and making agonized appeals for help to a group of lunatics who stood around the tub listening to the poor fellow's cries of pain with cheerful but unmoved interest. The attendants afterwards claimed that they did not put Grabowiski in the tub, but that other patients must have done it and turned on the water. The charge was a safe one to make. The accused patients have never taken the trouble to deny it.

"I saw Grabowiski in bed the next day," said an attendant. "His legs were all covered over with cotton and everybody knew he had been scaled in the bathtub while Casey and Ruby were out. Nothing was ever done with them, and no inquest was held. The matter was hushed up. Under "I have just noticed your charges in this the patients and the following telegram to the Tribune last held. The matter was hushed up. Under "I have just noticed your charges in this will, the clerk sent an attendant for the patients, and the left kent at a last, against his will, the clerk sent an attendant for the patient, and took him back to the asylum. The wards referred to are used for the more lucid of the patients.

while they were being bathed, and men would have lost their jobs for doing anything like that."

Nearly eight months before Grabowiski's death Sarah E. Johnson, a paralytic like him, confined in Ward 6 of the north annex, was she first sufferer from allowing lunatics to give other patients their baths or helping doing so. The circumstances of Mrs. Johnson's death are similar to that of Grabowiski, except that only one attendant, Miss Cora E. Scott, was concerned in the matter. Her duties in the ward were doubled at the time, owing to the sickness of another attendant, Miss Scott left her patient in the bash tub, it is said, to get some fresh cithing, and while she was out Mrs, Johnson herself, or some other of the patients, turned on the hot water faucet and the water boiling hot rushed into the tub. The patient was suffocated by the steam and her fiesh was burned and scalled and cooked by steam and water before Miss Scott, called back by the woman's cries of pain, could turn off the water and rescue her charge from her unfortunate plight. Other women, inmates of the same ward, were standing near the bathtub gesticulating wildly and talking excitedly, but they made no move to help the sufferer. Mrs. Johnson died June 23, 1885, a few days after the accident. She was seen in her bed, her lower limbs swathed in cotton bandages, by several abtendants from other wards.

Miss Scott remained in the asylum for several months, until compelled to leave by illness. No physician's certificate of the death and its cause was sent by Dr. Watson to the County Clerk's office, as the law requires him to do within thirty days after a death. It was learned at the office of the asylum, however, that the cause of Mrs. Johnson's death is entered on the records there as "general paralysis." without the added explanation. "complications: Septic infection from burns."

A different variety of carelessness and neglect on the part of attendants is charged as responsible for the death of Simon Daum, a patient who was found dying on the floo remaints are detailed to take charge of them.

The attendants in the ward on that day are said to have been Patrick Quinlan, Michael Lane, and August Bockhausen. While supposed to have all been on duty during the morning none of them were in the ward at the time Daum was attacked and beaten, according to their own story, and, according to the story of the other attendants, they had not been there for some time before. The current version is that they were all in the clothes-room—a smaller room off the ward where the patients clothing is kept—playing cards with Assistant Supervisor Baker. All of the attendants were on watch at the time, and their duties, it is claimed, required them to be actually in the ward looking after the padents. If there was any occasion for one, or even two of them to leave the ward on business connected with their duty, there was no reason or excuse, it is claimed, for all to be absent at the same time, but while propriety and prudence seemed to demand that at least one attendant should be con-

John Looker, who is supposed to have killed Simon Daum, had frequently before that time been allowed to visit the town unaccompanied, and on one occasion had gone into the office of the County Clerk and asked to have an inquest held on his wife, to have her sent to the asylum, and to have behaved so violently that a polleeman had to be sent for. Protest was made to the asylum management against allowing such a man to be at large, but he was not placed under restraint until after the killing of Daum. Ethan Allen, a dangerous sunatic, who killed his wife and child, and still has spells of violence, has several times been seen alone on the streets of, the town. James Hayes, George Hindman, Charles Tamksly, and other insane persons who, it is claimed, ought never to be allowed at large without an attendant accompanying them, are often seen away from the asylum alone.

Dr. H. F. Carriel, for many years Superintendent of the asylum, was asked for information regarding the stories marrated above, but declared he was unable to give any.

"Of course," he said, "I have heard the above, but declared he was unable to give any.

"Of course," he said, "I have heard the rumors and sometimes old attendants have come to me with such stories, but I know nothing except by hearsay. It might have been thought, had I made any investigation, that I was prying about the asylum seeing how things were run there now, and on that account I have taken pains to keep away. I understand pretty well that patients are given more freedom now than in former years, doubtless because of a sincere belief that the best way of handling insane persons is to show confidence in them and give them some liberty. If these stories are true this system has not resulted fortunately."

It is common talk in Jacksonville, and asserted by some of the attendants, that Wards 1, 3 and 7, on both the male and female sides, have for some time been left open until 9 o'clock, which accounts, if true, for the large number of patients who have been seen on the streets. Those who have not been careful to get back to their wards before 9 o'clock could either stay out all night or secure admission from the right watchman. Some time ago Charles Tamkley was seen down-town in one of the saloons. A citizen who knew him telephoned to the asylum, and asked why they let him out. "Oh," was the answer, "we let them walk on the grounds until 9 o'clock, and he's down here."

Casey and Ruby were out. Nothing was ever done with them, and no inquest was held. The matter was hushed up. Under Dr. Carriel there were strict orders that attendants should not leave patients at all while they were being bathed, and men would have lost their jobs for doing anything like that."

orted to the proper authorities of the county.

But as to the manner of their death and the causes nothing but second hand evidence is yet obtainable. It seems that there has been considerable looseness in the manner of caring for patients and there have been many complaints by people living in the vicinity of the institution of crazy people running at large to the annoyance of those living near by. The many changes made when there was a change in the State administration necessitated the employment of inexperienced persons who had to learn at the expense of the institution and these have doubtless been at fault.

Dr. Watson himself is rated as more of a politician than an expert in the care of the insane and he is a friend of Gov. Altgeld and has done all he could to promote the interests of his friend.

The Governor is issuing subposnas for all the witnesses he can and he declares his intention of probing all the charges to the end.

WITH THE PLAYER-FOLK.

It's a pity P. T. Barnum died before "Trilby" was written and dramatized. Had the prince of showmen lived long enough to take a managerial hand in Paul Potter's dramatization of Mr. Du Maurier's clever novel, the whole public would unreservedly acquiesce in Mr. Barnum's inevitable con-tention that he had "the greatest show on Morality isn't Trilby's long suit, as the whist players say, nor of her entertaining companions for that matter, but there is a saving grace about their lack of conventionality, and even in the reckless Christmas revel the naughtiness is so delicately suggested that even the church deacons before the footlights want more of the madcap Bebes and Mimis.

From comedy one is whirled to the tragic climax in the foyer of the opera-house. Last of all comes home and death, and before death, forgiveness.

The eminent respectability of the last act ought to win over the good people who have condemned the story in printed form. It is wonderful to see what prominent and respectable citizens Zou Zou, Dodor and Antony have become. Then Mrs. Bagot quite forgives the poor girl whose life she had quite ruined in trying to save her own boy's standing in society. Even the Rev. Mr. Bagot when he sees how the world of great people were not quite so afraid of Trilby, as he supposed they would be, gives his benediction. Poor Trilby des in the odor of respectability, if not of sanctity, and everybody goes home feeling much nicer than they do after witnessing a somewhat similar death scene enacted by a person known as "the lady with the camellias."

Miss Blanche Walsh is a better Trilby than her predecessor. Her physique, her manner, her temperament are of the masculine quality that make the type Du Maurier portrayed in his character—a woman who would live as a man among men. Miss Walsh is a most striking embodiment of the character in the early scenes.

who would live as a man among men. Miss Walsh is a most striking embodiment of the character in the early scenes. There is just a trifling lack of tenderness in the closing scene where the unknown, crushed down instincts of womanhood come to the surface. Mr. Lackaye is more impressive than ever as Svengali. Mr. Martinette is as insistently entertaining as Zou Zou and Mr. Hickman's Little Billee is happily removed from the pusilianimous Miksop the author and Messrs. S. Miller Kent and George Trader made of him. Mr. Gibbs has succeeded Mr. Morrison as Gecko and is not near as effective or graceful. The other characters are in the hands of the same people and the performance moves with splendid spirit.

Treasurer Bud Mantz had his annual benefit and as his friends came in threes and pairs he had all kinds of a full house.

All that is beautiful and lovely in woman, finds its climax in motherhood. How often we find among our American women that longing for the prattling voice, the idol of their waiting hearts. Burton, who had made slanderous remarks about her. She met Burton at church and thrashed him unmereifully with a large whip which she had hidden under her cloak. In a general set-to which ensued, Burton shot a young man named Goodson, who had aided Miss Berry; Goodson in turn nearly choked Burton to death, and Deacon W. H. "THUGS AND TOUGHS."

A few days ago the Republic published what it claimed to be an accurate list of the persons present at the alleged "dark lantern conference" with Gov. Stone. Among these, so it claimed, were State Treasurer Stephens, Charles R. Gregory, J. A. Schutz, James Bannerman, Dr. Otto E. Forster, John A. Lee, Election Com-missioners Higgins and Harris, and Chairman Brady of the City Committee.

The Republic is now denouncing these men as "thugs and toughs," and intimating that there is something disgraceful in being caught in their company.

What do these gentlemen think of this last performance of the "harmony" or-gan? What do decent citizens generally think of a newspaper that will forge a letter, sign the name of the Governor of the State to it, print it as his letter, glory in the act when caught and exposed, and wind up by classifying reputable citizens and well-known business men as "thugs and toughs?"

Mr. Francis' newspaper gives prominence in this morning's issue to a yarn signed "George S. Johna" Reading the headline one is tempted to inquire with Hamlet, "What act is this that roars so loud and thunders in the index?" When he reads the commonplace commingling of fact and fiction that follows, he is apt to ask "Why so hysterical a head?" to ask, "Why so hysterical a head?"

to ask, "Why so hysterical a head?"
Referring to the yarn, the Republic says editorially that Mr. Johns "has been in a position" to play the ignoble role in which he discloses himself in his signed statement. This is true. His position was for a long period in the room adjoining the editor's, where he could keep tab on the editor's callers and guess and surmice what they were talking about. surmise what they were talking about. He no longer holds that position. Hence this outbreak of impotent spite.

If all Mr. Johns' guesses and surmises while holding that position were as wide of the mark as that regarding the object of Chairman Brady's call last fall, he has wasted time that would have been better employed in doing the work for which he was paid. The Post-Dispatch's attack upon the City Committee was in-tended to bring about a reorganization of St. Louis Democracy. Chairman Brady's call was for the purpose of saying to the editor that he would not oppose the reorganization, and to ascertain if the editor had any plan of reorganization which he favored. Then and there the editor dictated to his stenographer and gave to Mr. Brady the plan of precinct organization, with a central execu-tive committee to be chosen by the pre-cinct delegates, which has since been in substance adopted and put in practice.

All the editorials quoted by Mr. Johns, save one, were written by the editor of the Post-Dispatch. They expressed the views he entertained then and which he entertains now. He has never swerved for a moment from the proposition laid down in his first editorial on the subject, that the Democrats of St. Louis could not hope to win victories under the old leadership or without a reorganization that would bring it closer to the people and enlist the co-operation of the better class of citizens who have a deep-seated and natural distrust of "practical politicians."

It is true that when the question of Missouri's attitude on the Administration's financial policy was forced to the front, the Post-Dispatch recognized that until it was settled, it relegated minor questions to the rear. Mr. Johns is not such a greenhorn in politics and in journalism as not to know that when a great' and vital question becomes dominant in the minds of the people, the newspaper that would keep in touch with the people must conform its course to that fact, and not insist upon keeping minor issues on dress parade. During all the troublous agitations through which Missouri Democrats have passed in their efforts to assert control over the party's agents and representatives, the Post-Dispatch, while taking part in the discussion of all phases of the question, has endeavored to do its full share in furthering the demand for reforms in city politics and in city government. Its record on this point during neither defense nor vindication. Even the reorganization of the City Democracy which was demanded in the editorials quoted by Mr. Johns has at last been accomplished, and was supported by the Post-Dispatch at every stage of the somewhat tedious process of carrying it into effect.

Every year "lives" of St. Patrick are published at the time of the celebration of his festival. No doubt a great deal that is contained in these accounts is imaginary. I know of several clubs in the West End to have a beautiful woman?

I know of several clubs in the West End to have been organized within the last month and have pledged themselves to use their influence among friends and acquaintances to banish all alcoholic beverages from entertaments of all kinds.

I know this movement will dind a strong support, even among those that have allowed the punch bowl to descrate their homes, for in many instances it is the fear of criticism that has caused them to serve intoxicating drinks, and now, when they find they will be supported by the representative women of the city, many of them will have no hesitancy in coming out on the right side, for we have had women say to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to to us when appealed to: "I don't like to be ready to the like and the "I have to the like and the "I have to the like and poodle are among the attractive local dogs on exhibition.

Several of the local exhibitors are showing their pets in beautifully decorated cages and stalls. Mrs. Wm. Hutchison has four pretty white cages in which her Yorkshires attract much attention. Bunn's mastiffs and fox terriers, Oughton's Gordon setters, Hunnewald's poodles and wire-haired fox terriers and Dale's buil terriers have also arrived. The dogs in the show will also be exercised in them regularly.

consideration for the past week, and alers, has given up his plan, the other venture though Walter Wilmot, one of the promoters, has given up his plan, the other venture may yet go through.

Wilmot is the manager of the Minneapolis Basebail Club. He has had some correspondence with Manager Frank Galennie of the Exposition about getting the big building for a week's tournament, but the matter again next fall.

While Manager Galennie was negotiating with Wilmot, J. E. Ashcroft, a well-known local promoter of amusementa, approached him with a scheme of the same character. Ashcroft's plan is for a series of races over a track to be constructed in the Music Hall. The big hall could be boarded over and the track laid out around it. Manager Galennie stated Tuesday morning that it would be a course of about twelve laps to the mile.

Another plan is fer a track around the endre building. This would give four stretches, but the turns would be sharp. The spectators could see the sport from along-side track on the firsh floor and from the galleries of the second floor. If a track is laid out in the Music Hall it would, apparantly, require a bigger outlay of cash than the other scheme. The great success of the indoor mest at flan Francisco has had a tendency to boom the matter with local promoters of amusement, An Indoor meet wild prove predicted as April.

PETTUS' NEW JOB. He Has Stepped Into Clem Creveling's Shoes at Kansas City.

The first annual bench show of the St. Louis Kannel Cleb was opened at 10 o'clock this morning in the east nave of the Exposition. There are exactly 779 entries to the show and of this number nearly 500, mostly circuit champions, were benched Monday. Local exhibitors with their pets were thicker than flies in the summer, around the Thirteenth street entrance this morning. As early as 3 o'clock they began to make their appearance. All sorts of canines were represented in the gathering and the millionaire's dog received no more consideration than that accorded the poor man's pet. Supt. Eberhardt was on hand bright and early with his staff of assistants and the benching of the dogs was proceeded with as fast as possible.

All classes of St. Louisans are represented among the exhibitors. Manager Harry Diddlebock of the Browns is showing a handsome colle. Howard Pearson, the sporting writer, expects to capture a prize with his Blenheim spaniel. J. B. Sheridan, his associate, thinks his Irish setter is the grounds fancier, is after big game this week. He has a string of dogs in the show and will try to win one or two of the big coursing stakes at the Fair Grounds. Lacey Crawford, the broker, is showing his promising fox terrier Fox. Charley Evans' big 50. Bernard, Miss Grace Thompson's bull-dog Beaubeaul, and Miss Ruth Sterling's poodle are among the attractive local dogs on exhibition.

Several of the local exhibitors are showing their pets in beautifully decorated cages and stalls. Mrs. Wm. Hutchison has They're off.

An aggregation of base ball "talent," surmamed the St. Louis Browns, left the Union Station last night in charge of Manager Diddlebeck. Dallas, Tex., is its destination and it will land there Wednesday morning unless it gets side-tracked. For the next three weeks the players will hustle to get the winter's stifness out of their bones and several Texas league teams will furnish the necessary friction.

But for one thing the boys would have departed in good spirits. When the train pulled out of the station Theo. Breitenstein was not on board. This was quite enough to put a damper on the crowd and consequently depression marked the departure. All because $50 of Breitenstein's advance money was not paid when he wished. There is something almost childish about this. It seems so ridiculous to jet such a small sum interfere with the understanding so recently reached with so much difficulty. Most likely Muckenfuss and "Breit" will adjust their differences to-day so that the crack pitcher can hie himself to Texas without delay, but no one will believe that such a nonsensical hitch was unavoidable. The blundering hand of Von der Ahe is plainly discernible in this latest exhibition of chump management.

Exhibition of chump management.

Dick Buckley has been secured by Watchins for the Indianapolis Club. The fine hand of John T. Brush is visible in this move. Buckley is, perhaps, the best hand at developing young pitchers that ever donned a mask, and his services will be invaluable in bringing out the good qualities of Brush's experiments. The Indianapolis Club is only a feeder for the Cincinnati team and Brush could not have placed Buckley where he could be of more value to the Reds. Dick's many friends in this city will be glad to learn that he has secured a berth so suited to his talents.

The League clubs in the South are having a hard time of it according to the reports the correspondents are sending to their papers. At Hot Springs, where the Cleveland and Pittsburg clubs are limbering up, the weather has been so bad that the boys have spent most of their time loading about the hotel corridors. The same plaint comes from New Orleans, where Buck Ewing is sorting out his lot, and from Texas, the present stamping ground of Anson and his Colts, The Orloles have run into snow and rain at Macon, Ga., and all the boys are starting in with sore throats and stiff necks. From Florida, however, comes a different tale. Irwin's men have struck nothing but haimy breezes and sunshine, and are getting into shape in short order. It is an open question, though, whether this will not prove detrimental when the team strikes the cooler atmosphere of the North, and the clubs playing in the worst luck now may have the best of it in the long run.

The visitors appreciated this and listened reverently to the descriptions and histories of the pattern hats; as in a grand salon the masterpleces are admired almost as much on account of the great names attached to them as for their intrinsic beauty, so the pattern hats were doted on as being the ideals of Parisian designers, whose names are held sacred by the millinery world.

One of these hats which received much attention was made of silk straw, trimmed with Persian ombre. The crown is covered with leaves and crushed popples. A beautiful rhinestone fastens the bow at the side, with a Persian center.

The Northwestern Masonic Aid Association, Fidelity Mutual Life Association, Security Mutual Life Association, Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, Covenant Mutual Life Association, National Life Association, Des Moines Life Association, New England Mutual Accident Association, Massachusetts Benefit Life Association, Bankers' Life Association and other similar corporations not enumerated by name, but interested in the suit, are plaintiffs, and James R. Waddill, State Superintendent of Insurance, is defendant.

Insurance, is defendant.

The fight grows out of the construction placed by Supt. Waddill upon the act of 1895, in applying it to the assessments levied by the various insurance companies whose revenue is defived from such sources. The act in question provides that every insurance company not organized under the laws of this State, shall pay a tax of 2 per cent a year upon all premiums received in the State, in lieu of all other taxes. The law provides that every company shall on or before the ist of March in each year, make a return, verified by the affidavit of its president or secretary to the Superintendent of the Insurance Department. The taxes shall be assessed on this basis and must be paid to the State Treaurer by May I.

The pensity for failure to comply with

May I.

The penalty for failure to comply with this law is suspension from the further transaction of business in this State.

In the bill filed Tuesday the companies allege that Supt, Waddill has notified them that the act applies to them and that they will be required to pay the tax, or he will revoke their licenses. The companies claim that the act does not relate to the class of business in which they are engaged and that they cannot be required to comply with any of its requirements. Nevertheless they have made the return, but have reserved all rights to protest.

It is alleged that the large business done by the assessment companies in Missouri will be irrevocably lost if Waddill enforces the law as applying to them. Therefore, an injunction is asked to restrain Waddill from levying the tax upon such associations and from revoking their licenses for failure to make return.

Superintendent Waddill of the State Insurance. Department stated after the suit had been filed that he had been expecting such a step.

"I have not yet been served with the papers," said he, "but I had no doubt that the suit would be filed. These companies have been escaping taxation hitherto on account of the provisions of article three of the Revised Statutes, which says nothing about taxation and provides that insurance companies shall not be subject to any restrictions not specified in the articles.

"Other insurance companies have always paid a 2 per cent tax on all premiums collected by them in Missouri. This was manifestly unfair and at the last session of the Legislature a law was passed fixing upon the companies operated on the assessment plan a tax of 2 per cent on their assessments.

"Under this new law I notified all insur-plan a tax of 2 per cent on their assessments.

"Under this new law I notified all insurance companies this year, including the assessment companies, to make returns to to me on which the 2 per cent tax might be levied. Most of the companies made the returns, but under protest, so that I knew there would be a movement to have the question adjusted in the courts.
"Some time ago I called upon the Attorney General for an opinion on the question. He ruled that the assessment companies are subject to the tax, and that their exemption, even prior to the passage of the new law, was a violation of the State constitution. The constitution provides that all property in the State shall be taxed, save the classes especially excepted by the constitution.

ARMENIAN RELIEF.

John Wanamaker Wires That the Need Is Urgent.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 17.—A ca-blegram from Hon. John Wanamaker has been received in this city relative to the situation in Armenia. It is as follows: "PHILIPPOPOLE, March 15 .- I am convinced that the necessity is appalling. Needs for relief extremely urgent. Highly approve your methods of distribution through Mr. Peet. Remit generously and promptly directly to him."

When Mr. Wanamaker sailed for Europe in January the citizens permanent relief committee of this city, which has thus far collected and distributed $10,000, arranged that during his stay in Constantinople he should inquire into the Armenian situation and the committee's plans for the distribution of moneys collected in Philadelphia for the relief of the sufferers and give the committee the benefit of his conclusions.

The cablegram quoted above is the result.
The moneys collected for Armenia are remitted to Mr. Peet in Constantinople on the treasurer of a relief committee organized months ago. Associated with the same committee is Mr. Dwight. Both of these men are Americans, long resident in Turkey.

Dr. Jameson, the witness also testified, said he hoped there would be no fighting, but if there was, "why, we'll fight." see the gorgeous display that had been prepared for their edification. So great was the crowd on both days that it was only with great difficulty that one could wend his way through the throngs.

The floral decorations were very beautiful. On all sides of the large department great ropes of rare flowers were festooned in profusion. Baskets of roses and pots of palms and broad-leaved plants adorned every niche and corner possible. There was a profusion of tall and stately white Easter lilles, suspended from their frail and slender starks, emitting a delightful odor which pervaded the entire establishment.

their frail and slender stalks, emitting a delightful odor which pervaded the entire establishment.

Not less lovely than the magnificent array of nature's flowers, were the Easter bonnets, which were everywhere displayed. Mr. Louis Wachtel, the manager, gave evidence of excellent taste in his selections and many of the masterpleces of the French milliners were on dress parade.

Each was perched on a long silver wand and each attracted the attention and elicited warm admiration from the thousands of ladies who viewed them.

Among the hundreds of hats that were universally admired was one from the establishment of Linn Faulkner, at Paris. This is one of Mr. Wachtel's direct importations. It is a large and dainty black hat, the body of which is made of horse hair lace, with innumerable spangles of jet, tastily arranged. It is trimmed with two large black plumes, gracefully poised on the left side and held in position with an artistically cut steel buckle. On the right side are two small black tips, and they, too, are caught with small cut steel buckles. The hat is turned up at the back, thus creating a space which is filled with a large bunch of yellow roses.

Another importation that was universally admired was a dainty bonnet from the establishment of Mme. L. Colombe, the famous Paris milliner. It is of brown, with an irdescent crown of brown and gold it. Is frimmed with wings of chirton and aignetic, and is finished in the back with shaded green and brown roses.

Another hat is made of white and gold lace, interwoven with a gathered brim of the same material. On one side is a cluster of immense yellow flowers and pansies, and in the other a bandeau of black velvet, iring on the hair. There are long pointed bows of black and white laze like paddles, standing at the hair. There are long pointed bows of black and white laze like paddles, standing at the hair. FOR THE CUSTODY OF BARRETT FROST.

Aristocratic Families at Outs About a Small Boy.

HIS GRANDMOTHER HAS HIM.

The Sweringens, Barretts, Frosts and Hirschbergs Can't Agree Who Shall Keep Jack Frost's Son.

Eleven-year-old Barrett Frost, son of Jack Frost of Bardstown, Ky., grandson on the paternal side of General D. M. Frost and through his mother of Mrs. M. J. Sweringen of Vandeventer place, has caused an acrimonius difference between two of the most aristocratic families of St. Louis.

The Frost and Sweringen families are each striving for his possession.

They have been at outs over the matter for some time but affairs have now assumed a critical phase, their relations can hardly be termed friendly and as the members of the most exclusive circles are mutual friends of both houses society is deeply agitated.

The precipitancy of hostilities was brought about by Mrs. Annie King, nee Sweringen, the child's grandmother, taking him from the care of his nurse and ordering that person to return to St. Louis.

This occurred in New Orleans last Wednesday. The domestic was not in Mrs. King's employ. She at once charged Mrs. King's employ. She at once charged Mrs. King's employ. She at once charged Mrs. King with attempting to kidnap the child, and greatly alarmed a circle of the friends, both of Mrs. King and the Frost family, who were visiting in New Orleans at the time.

The Sweringens say the charge of kidnapping is ridiculous and impertinent as Mrs. King had paid the expenses of her maid and the child's grandmother she had a right to his custody.

Miss Nellie Fahey, the nurse, is in the employ of Mrs. F. D. Hirschberg, nee Frost, with whom the child has been making his home, and she knowing the anxiety of both Mrs. Hirschberg and Mrs. King to retain possession of the child naturally inferred that Mrs. King was trying to circumvent her mistress and raised a hue and cry over being relieved of Master Barrett.

Mrs. King now has possession of the child. Her whereabouts are unknown to the

All day Tuesday, the mammoth establishment was thronged with those anxious to learn the latest styles, supply themselves with what was necessary to place them in the 'swim," at prices that caused them to exclaim at their good luck.

The ever changing crowds added to the artistic appearance of the place. Through the alses they thronged, and admired the various attractions arranged for the occasion.

This will be a surprise to the Frost family, as both Mr. Graham Frost and Mr. F. D. Hirschberg stated Tuesday morning that the child would be produced here Wednesday. They anticipated no difficulty would arise over the return of the child to its father or Mrs. F. D. Hirschberg, in whose custody he left it. features of the button and trimming department.

In the dress goods department a bewildering array of silks, wool mixtures, Scotch checks, rough weaves, with colors of tan, light mixed gray, and green of all shades, are being shown in endless variety. The printed silk warps are in Persian and Jacquard designs, in Gros de Londres, in Dresden effects and Persian and Jacquard. The rush here will continue through the week. Tuesday the millinery department was opened and also the cloak Department, and were among the chief of the many centers of attraction in the establishment. Spring wraps, in capes, Newmarkets and all varieties, and bonnets, hats and toques in every variety, captured the feminine heart.

Mr. J. Van S. Barrett, a son of Mrs. Annie King, gave his family's side of the story for publication Tuesday morning.

"We regarded this as a purely family affair," he said. "and tried to keep it out of the publid prints, but as the opposition has detailed their side for publication we will say what is to be said for our family.

"The contention over little Barrett's possession has really been going on for years. Before his mother died and while on her deathbed she gave the child into her mother's keeping. "My step father, Mr. King, without my mother's knowledge or consent, approached Mr. Frost and told him that he should contribute to the child's support. Mr. Frost expressed his unwillingness to do so. Mr. King was firm and Mr. Frost then came and took the child. It was the first intimation mother had that she was to be separated from the child and the blow whay a terrible one. She didn't want Jack Frost's money and didn't need it, but Mr. King was firm. Mother wrote back on the following day denouncing that as a falsehood and adding that she would go down on her hands and knees to scrub if need be to care and provide for the little fellow.

"Now to the circumstances leading up to this story that has became public property. About a month ago Nellie Fahey sent over to mother's one afternoon saying that Barrett was quite ill. She found the child suffering from a congestive chill. Mrs. Hirschberg was out at the Country Club, and as the child was looked after altogether by Miss Fahey, she knew nothing about his illness. Mother sent for Dr. Mulhall and he said the little fellow was seriously ill. When Mrs. Hirschberg returned she dressed herself and went out again to another function.

"Mother was nettled at this. Dr. Mulhall said a trip South was necessary for the child's health, and when Mrs. Hirschberg said she could not afford the expenses mother agreed to pay the cost of the trip for the child and nurse.

"The same proposition had been made to Jack Frost when he took the boy away from mother, but he refused it.

"There was triction subsequently and on Dec. 25, 1894, Mrs. Sweringen had to write to Mrs. Hirschberg telling her that certain things had reached her that she hoped would cease, as unless they did, she would be obliged to change her mind about what she intended doing for her great-grandson in her will.

now known as Gamble Park.

"It occupies the highest altitude in the city except Compton Hill," said he. "The ground belongs to the city and is the only place it owns that is available for an armory. The space is not only ample for the purpose proposed—being 200250 feet—but is large enough to allow horticultural adornment on the outside. Nothing you know enhances the architectural beauty of a building so much as to have a flower garden with walks and trees around it.

"The complaint that it is too far out is not worth considering. It is a pleasant walk from down town for an athletic young man and it can be reached by car quickly from all over the city.

"The building of an armory on the square occupied in part by the new City Hall should be out of the question. Such an arrangement would detract from the beauty, symmetry and effect of both buildings. All the vacant ground around the City Hall should be devoted to park purposes."

PRESIDENT BUS

Bossing a School Board Isn't All Skittles and Beer.

WORRY ABOUT COMMITTEES

Grawe Won't Say What He Waste But He Favors the Teachers for Business Ressons.

President Henry Bus of the School Board as troubles of his own, and they are

He is worried over the publication of his record by the Post-Dispatch, and the well-grounded rumor that his right to hold the office will be tested in the Supreme Court is causing him some uneasiness.

And the appointment of committees helps to make Mr. Bus wear a worried look.

When the famous deadlock was broken last Thursday night, Bus' friends gave it out that he would announce his committees Saturday afternoon. The committees had been slated before Bus' election to the Presidency, but the slats was broken.

Grawe concluded Monday that he didn't want the Building Committee and did want the Teachers Committee.

Grawe has a jewelry store, and as chairman of the Teachers Committee some 1,500 teachers would be visiting him regularly at his jewelry store. Every time a teacher wanted to purchase jewelry for a birthday present, wedding present or the like, she would naturally go to Mr. Grawe's jewelry store and send her friends there, because, as chairman of the Teachers Committee, Mr. Grawe would be a power. Being chairman of the Building Committee would not help his business a little bit. Of course Mr. Grawe does not explain his preference in quite this way. He does not even admit positively that he has selected the Teachers Committee. To a Post-Dispatch reporter Grawe stated that he had instructed President Bus to make up a slate with him—Grawe—as chairman of the Building Committee, and one with him as chairman of the Teachers Committee, permitting him to make his selection afterward.

"What I want." said Grawe. "is to select."

tee, permitting him to make his selection afterward.

"What I want," said Grawe, "is to select the committee in which I shall be of most use to the schools. I don't know a thing about building and would be lost on the Building Committee. I do know something about the Teachers Committee, having served on it.

And that is why Bus is worried. He has no one to make chairman of the Building Committee except Grawe, unless he selects from his enemies. If he gives the important chairmanship to Hequembourg, he will scon be tied up in several kinds of knots because Hequembourg cannot attiend a meeting of the committee once in a season.

meeting of the committee once in a season.

Ulrich told friends of Bus before the reorganization that he'd die before he'd vote for Bus. Although Ulrich climbed into the band wagon after his vote was not needed, there will be a howl if he is given the Building Committee, especially in view of the $2.00 real estate scandal with which his name was connected. Berg is not being considered in this connection and Lacey and Kissner alone remain of the Republicans who are at all available.

Both of these are practically new members, without experience. Bus has realized that to appoint them would be to embarass the entire business of the school.

Director Sheehan is also worrying Mr. Bus. The logical place for Sheehan is on the Teachers Committee, for he has served on it for years and will be of no service on any other. Bus and his friends have been determined all along that Sheehan shall not figure on this committee and the reason they themselves advance for keeping him off is that they know he is just shrewd enough to get the better of the six other members of the committee in their deliberations.

HE TOSSED IN HIS SLEEP.

The local membership of the Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis is something over 1,600. Each member is more than anxious to see the magnificent new building, at Grand and Franklin avenues, completed and equipped, ready to begin the work for which it was designed. The members have hit upon a scheme to raise a part of the NTGOO fund which committees are now engaged in collecting, and if their plans do not miscarity materially they will succeed in helping along the work to a great extent.

The members have proposed a scheme for raising revenue, which has met with the approval of the officers. They are selling bricks to themselves and thair friends at any price they can obtain above it. With each sale a certificate is filled out and signed by the President and Secretary, certifying that the purchaser, in consideration of prick in the new this paid, is entitled to a prick in the new this paid, is entitled to a believe that the purchaser, in consideration, he may fix himmel, anyone can become financially interested in one of the stitutions in the city.

President. McPheeters says that, while doubtless many of the bricks will be sold for si, many others will be sold for prices much higher, some reaching as high as 110 and 320. Each one of the 1,000 members undertake to effect five sales.

The work of the committees in soliciting large subscriptions in the downtown districts has not been so successful as that of the young men. The committees consist of Messrs. Walker Hill, James H. Allen, George W. Brown, Selden P. Spencer, H. Brinsmade, F. B. Brownell, E. P. V. Ratter, B. Nugent and Thomas S. McPheeters.

Some handsome subscriptions have been received, but not enough to complete the work. The committee will continue the work of the required sum will probably soon be secured.

"Stadhach"—the Thirsty. Irishmen could well appreciate such a martyrdom.

The story of the banishment of the snakes is as familiar as its origin is obscure. Be that as it may there are no reptiles in Ireland. In 1831 Mr. James Cleland, wishing to see if the soil of Ireland was obnoxious to the serpent tribe, purchased half a dozen of the common, harmless, English snakes and turned them loose on his estate. One of them was killed a week later by a peasant, who had not the slightest idea in the world what it could be. It was thought to be, an eel. Naturalists spent hours trying to convince themselves that it was not a reptile, for the idea of a "rale live sarpint" being found within a stone's throw of the St. Patrick's tomb was impossible. When others of the half dozen were found the 'country was panic-stricken. The manifestation was thought to foreshadow either the plague or the millenium. A few practical people offered rewards for any or all reptiles discovered, and the rest of Mr. Cleland's importation were exterminated.

Another story about the snakes is that when bamishing the reptiles Patrick chained a monster serpent in Lough Dilreen, telling him to remain there till Monday. The peasantry of the locality still firmly believe that the monster rises to the surface just after midnight Sunday and says in Irish: "It's a long Monday, Patrick."

The legends of Patrick relating to the shamock and the banishment of the reptiles are interesting to scholars, because the trefoil in Arabic is called "shramrahk," while Pliny, in his "Natural History," says that serpents are never seen upon trefoil, and it prevails against the stings of snakes

It was a report.

This report was that Czar Ziegenhein had accepted an invitation from Pope Reagan, the only genuine son of the Emerald Isle among the army of employes in the Collector's office, and was billed to appear at the ball of the Irish National Alliance to be held at Liederkranz Hall on the evening of St. Patrick's day.

The report went into details so far as to describe the costume in which Mr. Ziegenhein's form was to be ensonced, the number and character of the drinks he was billed to take, the toasts he would be called on to respond to, the dances he was to participate in and the songs he was scheduled to sing. With a view to verifying from the lips of the great man himself the truth or falsity of this picturesque story a reporter for the nounced in Monday's 6 o'clock edition of the Post-Dispatch, will be brought to St. Louis for burtal. The funeral will probably take place next Friday from the Brodell residence, 21st Lafayette avenue.

AN OLD PIONBER.

Edward E. Bredell a Retired Citizen Dies in New Orleans.

Mr. Bredell's death was quite sudden. He left St. Louis for a Southern trip February 5, accompanied by his niece, Miss Mina Bredell, and his lifelong friend, Daniel R. Garrison. They went to Ocean Springs, Miss., where Mr. Garrison succumbed to pneumonla March 8.

The shock of his death greatly affected his aged companion. In a few days he, too, was seised with pneumonis, and during the latter part of the week was removed to New Orleans, where he died Monday morning.

Mr. Bredell was & years of age. He came to St. Louis over fifty years ago, entering the dry goods business. In 1856 he founded the Missouri Glass Company and remained at its head for over thirteen years, when he retired from business.

HAD HIS FACE TORN OFF.

Thomas Boyle's Punishment for Teasing a Vicious Dog.

Thomas Boyle, a laborer living at 4430 Maffitt avenue, was badly bitten by a dog in Belcker & Winterhoff's saloon, at 714

in Belcker & Winternoit's ballow, High street.
The dog belonged to Belcker and was tied in a back room. Boyle commenced to tease it and getting too close, the animal managed to fasten his teeth in Boyle's face.
Before the man could get away the brute had torn off most of his face.
Boyle was taken to the Dispensary, where Dr. Lippe dressed the wound and sent him to the City Hospital.

months without the removal of the cancers. Both sisters expressed their willingness to undergo the operations, and they were performed Sunday merning by Dr. E. H. Pratt and Dr. F. D. Holbrook.

In such case the operation was followed by profound collapse. The influence of the ansesthetic having passed, the disters sank rapidly and died within a few moments of each other. Relatives were present and the bodies of the alsters were taken to Seymour, Ind., Sunday night.

Few women were better known in St. Louis than Mrs. A. W. Dickerson. For years General Superintendent of the Missouri Pacific Rallway system, her husband had made himself beloved to every employe with whom he had had dealings. He was an intimate friend of all the officials of the system. Mrs. Dickinson was handsome and accomplished and of a prominent family. She was an intimate fried of Mrs. S. H. H. Clark and Mrs. H. C. Townsend, and while not of a character to make social functions her chief employment, became a recognized leader of society almost immediately after coming to St. Louis.

Mrs. Sarah Blish, the sister, was known in St. Louis. She was the wife of Blish, who founded the Blish Millin the largest flour mill company in So. Indiana. She was one of the we women in that section of the Sts leaves three sons and two daught sons are Meedy and Tipton Blish, reserved an operation similar to the one with the deaths of the sisters.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 17.—This morning at 2 o'clock Herbert Ransom, an Englishman, if years old, employed as solicitor for the "Texas Railway Guide," was found dead on River avenue, two miles from the city limits. her to death. She lived only a few minutes.

A mob set upon Jones and somebody almost killed him with a brick. He escaped from the grounds, but was arrested. The feeling against him was so strong that he was at once taken to Cairo. A mob followed him there and attempted to lynch him, but failed to break down the jail door.

Jones was afterward removed to Murphysboro. In December he broke jail, but was captured the next day.

On New Year's Day he tried it over again and escaped. He went to Cairo, and thence to Texas. Ever since he has been rowning around through the South. Early in January he was knocked in the head by zwo negroes near Arkansas City and robbed of file. For two days he was unconscious. Finally a good Samaritan took him in charge and sent him to Pine Bluff, Ark., where he remained a month.

Then he went down to the Red Piver, hired a small boat and floated down 100 miles, intending to hire out on a pintation. He abandoned the boat and went '6 three-port, La. Then he roamed around some more, but finally decided to give up and come to St. Louis to see his little girl.

A number of owners of paid-up stock recently filed an intervening petition asking to be discharged with their stock in full and released from further liability on the ground that they did not stand in the same relation, as the other stockholders, who made stated payments on their stock, but were in reality preferred creditors. Judge Grosscup refused the petition, holding that all stockholders were on the same plane; that all participated in the dividends of the company alike, and it necessarily followed that they must alike bear the losses.

In one corner of the window is a fac-simile of one of the famous round towers of Ireland, made et linen handkerchiefs, manufactured by Murphy & Stevenson of Belfast. There is a mound of fresh green shamrock and heather in the center of the window.

Among the other numerous articles are bits of turf and heath from the bogs of Allen, shillalahs from Wicklow, kipperns from Connaught, peggin cup and horn spoon, a pewter cup 106 years old, a spinning wheel 300 years old, a metal cast of the coat of arms of King Brian Boru, pleces of rock from the Parnell mines, Limerick marble ornaments, a picture of Blarney Castle by James Barnesley, a well-known Irish artist; some ky from Linen Hall, in Belfast, built 150 years ago, and now belng torn down to make room for the new City Hall.

Others in the trade say positively that the new law is much better from the American company's standpoint than the old law. It is, in the first place, intended to help the agrarian party, or the farmers, more than any other class. These farmers represent about 55 per cent of the whole population of Germany. They have also the backing of the Emperor, whose principal ailies are farmers and owners of large landed estates.

STATE GRAIN INSPECTION.

Excessive Charges and Slack Inspec-tion Irritating Merchanta.

There is general dissatisfaction among local grain handlers at the excessive charges made by the State Grain Inspection Department at both St. Louis and Kansas City for inspecting grain.

On the east side of the river, the maximum charge for weighing and inspecting is 60 cents per car. At Chicago the charge is from 5 cents to 40 cents per car. In Missouri the charge made is 76 cents per car.

This oharge has been considered excessive for a long time and in Masch, 1896, a committee from the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange went to Jefferson City to push the passage of a bill fixing the maximum charge at 50 cents per car. The committee was approached by the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners with a request to let the bill drop. They stated that the department was in debt and that it would be necessary to maintain the charges for a while in order to pay up.

They promised the committee that as soon maintain the charges for a while in order to pay up.

They promised the committee that as soon as this indebtedness was paid they would voluntarily reduce the weighing and inspecting charge to 50 cents. This promise has never been kept, aithough the department is out of debt.

Merchants on 'Change say the grain inspection all along has been considered a private snap by the Commissioners. Through it, it is claimed, they provide their relatives and henchmen with fat positions and for that reason are slow to make reductions in charges which would force them to reduce the number of positions to be distributed as patronage.

the number of positions to be distributed as patronage.

The following instances of the nepotism practiced in the department are instanced by interested merchants: Commissioner Cowgill's son-in-law, D. E. Tate, is in charge of the Inspection Department at Kansas City, Under him is a force made up of henchmen of the Commissioners from Caldwell and adjoining counties. At Kansas City there are but two regular grain warehouses, the balance being mixing houses, or what are termed hospitals.

In the St. Louis Department, Commissioner Flora's son, 18 years of age, has a position paying 375 per month; Commissioner Hickman's son, Edward Hickman, has a position paying 160 a month. The remainder of the force is composed of friends and connections of the commissioners, drawing calaries ranging from 56 to 5500 per month. Some of them have never had experience in the handling of grain.

der of the force is composed of friends and connections of the commissioners, drawing salaries ranging from 350 to 3500 per month. Some of them have never had experience in the handling of grain.

Col. Bill Phelps, who is said to stand highly with the commissioners, has been conciliated with a position for his brother, Charles Phelps, paying 500 per month. His position is "Supervising Weighmaster," an office not authorised or contemplated by the State law.

The inspection of the department is severely criticised by the members of the Merchants' Exchange. At Kansas City vast quantities of Kansas hard wheat which is acknowledged to be mixed with apring and other wheat has been freely graded as "No. 2," and thus made deliverable on contracts.
